AMERICANS GET PRAISE IN WAR ON U-BOATS

Good Work in Combating German Submarines Continues, Says British Admiralty.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, May 24.—This week's figures of vessels sunk by submarines (thirty of all classes) show that the allied navies are keeping up the good work of the previous fortnight, and the American unit, although still a small one, shares the credit for excellent work. Not only are the sinkings being kept at a fairly low figure, but the offensive against U-boats also con-tinues to show favorable results. The actual figures in this respect, however, are not known.

The British admiralty this week wears a pleased smile at the mention of the submarine campaign, for the results of the naval work in the past two weeks are regarded as really indicating an important victory over the Germans.

Possible Victory Far Off.

The German naval people throughout the early months of the ruthless U-boat The German naval people throughout the early months of the ruthless U-boat war freely predicted that England would be "on her knees" by June 1, and gloomy pictures were painted of grim fainine certain by that date for the people of Great Britain and France. June 1 is almost here, and German victory in the submarine warfare seems as far distant as ever. There has been a constant improvement in the methods of the allies in opposing and suppressing U-boat activity, and these methods have become more and more successful with longer days and finer weather and increasing familiarity on the part of the skippers of merchantmen with the methods of naval control. An admiralty official, speaking to the Associated Press, said:

"The American destroyers are playing no small part in the anti-submarine war, and our officers have expressed the greatest enthusiasm at the spirit, enterprise, acumen and quick-wittedness with which the American unit has taken up its work.

Keeping Everlastingly at It.

The Americans are already thorschip conversant with our methods, and we hope that they soon will begin aching us some new angles. Of burse there is little to be said to the iblic regarding the methods. But us far we are working on the principal that there is no royal road to sucse against U boats. Hard work and finite pains is our recipe. It is the d American dectrine of keeping everatingly at it.

PARIS, May 24.—Details of a battle between the trawler Ibis and a German submarine, in which the subman submarine, in which the submarine was driven off, have just been made public. The fight took place in the Bay of Biscay on April 22.

The sea was rough and the wind was blowing hard when the Ibis sighted the submarine. The fishing boat had her trawl down and was unable to get up any speed, but her skipper, without a moment's hesitation, cut away his trawl and joined battle spiritedly. The coolness of the crew and the skill of the cabin boy, who took the helm while his mates stood at the guns, decided the fight. In five minutes the submarine had had enough and submerged.

British Steamer Quarrydene Fights Enemy Off Irish Coast.

BOSTON, May 24.—An encounter be-ween the British armed freight steamship Quarrydene and a German submarine off the Irish coast, in which submarine off the Irish coast, in which the gun crew of the steamer claimed to have made two hits during an exchange of shots, was related in a letter received by the agents of the steamer here today.

The Quarrydene, which left here on April 16, carrying a cargo of grain and machinery for Manchester, England, encountered the U-boat, according to the letter, on May 2. The Quarrydene was pursued for half an hour by the submarine, which fired twenty-one shots at her, while the steamer replied with thirteen.

The Quarrydene was not struck, the letter said, but the submarine disappeared after two shots had apparently disabled her.

"I bring good news. I have been fourteen years in Berlin and you can easily realize that I have been able to thoroughly study the character of our enemies. Things are going badly on the other side of the Rhine. The facade of the imperial edifice seems solid enough from abroad, but in reality there are cracks in it."

The commission disposed of several minor league cases during its four-hour session, and adjourned until today. It is generally believed that the commission will suggest a policy for the major league clubs to pursue during the war, but Chairman Herrmann declined to make any statement.

The claim of the New York club of the National League against the Toronto International League club for $1,500 for the sale of Player Cooke was allowed. test was tossed away, literally as well as figuratively, by Joe Judge, the White Sox winning, 2 to 1. The deciding tally came in the sixth round. Benedict Arnold Gandil, Judge's predecessor at first for the Griffmen, was the Sox player who scored it. With Felsch disposed of, Chic got a line single to right, took second on the run-and-hit play while Crane was tossing out Risberg, and went to third when Schalk singled sharply to left. On an attempted double steal Schalk was caught off first and given a run between bases by Judge and Crane. The ball slipped out of Judge's hand as he was about to throw back to Crane, and it rolled to right field, Gandil scoring and Schalk taking third. Cicotte, who walked, and Schalk were left as Shaw tossed out Liebold.

Liebold.

Washington was the first to score and was aided by some luck. Rice led off in the second with a double to right, sliding into second ahead of Liebold's peg. Smith sacrificed him to third, and when both Weaver and Risberg failed to get under Morgan's Texas Leaguer in short left it went for a hit and Rice counted. The Sox tied it up in the next round on Liebold's Bufe bunt down the third base line. Weaver's sacrifice and Eddie Collins' double, which fell inside the foul line in left by a matter of inches.

Cicotte outpitched Shaw by a considerable margin and deserved his victory. One of the only two hits garnered off his delivery outside of the second round was Foster's double in the third with Milan walked, but Schalk got Rice's foul pop. In the fourth, with one gone, Morgan singled to left center and stole as Ainsmith whiffed. Crane could not Morgan singled to left center and stole as Ainsmith whifed. Crane could not bring him in. In the next five innings the Griffmen were retired in order. Shaw, on the other hand, often was in trouble, eleven of the Sox being left on the bases. Liebold's single and passes to Collins and Jackson filled the bases in the first. Shaw, however, fanned Felsch on three pitched balls and Gandil popped to Judge. In the fourth Risberg doubled to the extreme corner in left, took third on an out and Cicotte walked, but with no further result.

Collins walked and stole in the seventh, getting no further than second, but a couple of miscues made it appear the Sox would score again in the eighth. With one away, Risberg was safe when Foster let his grounder trickle through to left field; Schalk filed to Milan, Cicotte drew his third successive pass, and, when Ainsmith threw wild attempting to nip Risberg off second, the latter took third. Both were left, as Liebold popped to Morgan.
